Octanerendercinema4dcrack __FULL__edzip

in the scene there are some c4d layer shaders that are not supported, especially in Net render. If someone knows the way to such shaders, please share it in the comments. Also from the main stage. Everything is clear with her. Copies of the ship, with special effects, etc. no. But what was the problem, so it's with the music. The music is different everywhere, and the soundtrack had to be made the same throughout the session. Yes, then the engine itself returned everything, but it looked so unconvincing that it was also somehow strange. Not to mention "1.1.0.1" about the fact that at the time of processing the picture, you can't even hear what is playing on the stage. Next - the most pleasant. The scene uses a rasterized object loading method. And this, I tell you, is a very difficult task. To begin with, you will have to learn how to load rendered images directly into Wrap without using a file manager. In this scene, this was done using the Wrap command. After that, the created file (bmp) is copied to the Wrapped buffer. Editing is done with the File command. The file (bpp) is renamed. -Filename format (.bmp) is set. -export is inserted. The export options are in .bmp and the import options are in .cst. We write a new scene (Location). Create a file for rendering (Wrapped). Save in this scene. Turn on the audio again. Now there is only Wraps in the scene - the old capture script. Script settings can be viewed on the Scripts tab in Settings. After this setting is observed, it remains only to reload the scene. And so 5 times. And maybe more. Depending on how many frames and how much time it takes to render. Then the most interesting begins. The stage converged on the left edge, and went up. It was not possible to remove this part of the scene. Now I was faced with the question of how best to fit it into another scene, so that it would not interfere. The curious point is that the movement of the line of rotation itself is also ineffective. The Zoom Index command is used to move. Since we can't move around the scene, maybe drag it? But,
