An internal combustion engine provided with a cam actuating a valve lift is required to improve an combustion efficiency. In order to obtain this, the internal combustion engine must be arranged so as to provide a sufficient contact surface area between the cam and the valve at the start of a compression stroke of the engine. However, the combustion efficiency is reduced if the contact surface area between the cam and the valve is made large. In view of this, an engine with a high compression ratio must be arranged such that the opening angle of the valve at the start of

The sine-Gordon equation is an integrable many-body problem in a space-periodic potential. We prove a conjecture of Wigner that for the sine-Gordon model the quantum dynamics is described by the Wigner-Bargmann transform on the circle, $(x(t),p(t)) \rightarrow e(i(x(t)/|x(t)|))e(-i p(t) |x(t)|)$, where $x(t)$ is the particle coordinate in the space-periodic potential. The formal correctness of this conjecture is proved using a modification of the Quantum Inverse Scattering Method that includes a unitary operator describing the internal degrees of freedom. The correct quantum unitary operator is constructed with the help of the deformed oscillator algebra.
